So difficult and hazardous is the task, with the necessity of timberiar cave-ins that he has been able to progress only about a foot an hour. Workers are taking turns at the gruelling "key" job.

Through strange chance and the the desperate heroism of Welby Morgan, 20, a "nozzle man" on the project, the trapped men have air. They also have water but are without food. Morgan had just picked up a four-inch pipe when the cave-in began. He rushed for safety as a huge timber, 12 by 16 inches, cracked over his head.

CLINGS TO PIPE

Instinct told him to cling to the pipe. He struggled through a torrent of mud. The tunnel closed behind him with a roar. The end of the pipe stuck out of the mud Morgan thought in time of what the pipe would do, if it would reach for erdiveth. He protected it as he crawled from the debris.

Days of drudgery turn into weeks of despair, mused the newspaper reporter as he faced the loss of his job. For weeks he had waited. For weeks he had waited. For weeks he had telephoned for weeks he

'Jealousies Shall Not Enter Here'

At a recent meeting of citizens at the Muscatine Hotel, the question of forming a Chamber of Commerce was discussed. There is no question but what an energetic association of that kind can assist greatly in the progress of any city, and there is no question but what the wrong kind of an association can greatly retard the city's growth.

A chamber of commerce to be of value must be all that its name implies-a chamber of commerce-a chamber where commercial things are taken up and materialized. It does not mean a nicely finished room with card tables, pool tables and such luxuries. It does not mean an asssembly room where all the "petty jealousies" of the community shall be aired. It means burying the ax, and righting about face to "do some-

I wonder if the new association will be just that. I fear not unless different tactics are used, than those visible at the First of all, the chairman of the meeting was one who has been hostile and holds grievances towards certain business interests of the city and associated closely with others who have taken an extremely narrow view of things, at least we kn w he is closely associated with one who loudly claims that "one newspaper is enough for our city". For everyone to feel that one of anything in commercial lines is enough for any city, is taking the wrong slant on progress. Suppose we had only one shoe store, one grocery, one clothing store, one jewelry store or one factory. Then what! A one newspaper town is not what anyone wants. If such thoughts are in the minds of those who appear foremost in this movement, we can hardly expect anything but a "clique" which I am sure would not be for the best interests of any city. We have had entirely to many "cliques" already.

The meeting I understand went along nicely, with a little' reluctance between speakers, until suddenly there was a lull -some minutes seemed to pass before the next speaker arose, and then someone was heard to say "go to it". Up jumped a Mr. Bond. He stated in substance that he had lived in Muscatine for so many years, that he traveled considerably from Chicago out over this territory, and that Muscatine should be heard of more, that they heard much of one man in Muscatine to no good advantage or something of that kind. As much to say that the one man they heard so much of is a detriment to the city. The old saying is, "when the shoe fits, wear it" I AM WEARING THE SHOE. Now the thing wrong with Mr. Bond is that he has for years sold aluminum ware, and my expose of the poisons of aluminum ware in my TNT magazine, did not suit Mr. Bond. When the first article appeared in the TNT magazine about one year ago last June, in 1929, Mr. Bond came to my office "hot under the collar" and even threats were made, bad names were called. He said something like this: "Baker better watch out, as we are building a million dollar building up in Wisconsin, and we will put him out of business."

Well, to make a long story short, Mellons millions didn't scare me, we never went out of business, and for six months I published articles about aluminum poisoning. These articles reached far and wide "Aluminum business" dropped off, and someone told me that Mr. Bond had made as high as $400 monthly salary in his former sales, that business got so rotten that he quit selling aluminum and went into the business of selling advertising novelities. Maybe that's why Mr. Bond arose in that meeting and started to condemn Norman Baker. Who were they who before he arose to speak, said "Go to it"? We care not who it was, but it does show that rightly the question can be asked-Was this meeting truthfully called to discuss the necessity of a new Chamber of Commerce for Muscatine, or was it called to condemn The Midwest Free Press, because it was a new newspaper in Muscatine, or was it called to jump on Norman Baker?

We had one Commercial association here a few years ago and the secretary, Mr. Chas Fox, was permitted to write false statements about enterprises in Muscatine, for instance, one firm with whom I was shopping with for a carload of California fruit wrote to the secretary of our Commercial association asking about the credit standing and finances of Norman Baker. Mr. Fox wrote back that I was a radical, and a no good sort of a fellow and that I "never paid my bills until I was forced to do so in court". Mr. Fox knew that there is not one individual in Muscatine or America that enjoys a better credit rating than I do for the payment of my bills, but this was purely malice. I exposed Mr. Fox and now he is out West where he rightly belongs, and the commercial association passed into oblivion.

Today we stand facing an attempt to start another such association. Shall it be started on the same foundation as that which was washed away or shall be we build it upon a foundation that will and can face the storm for a hundred years?

Muscatine needs a good commercial association of some kind to function 100% for the city of Muscatine and the county of Muscatine, but it must not be run for a favored few. All petty jealousies must be forgotten, men with axes to grind should stay out, and the first 75c that comes into the treasury should be spent for a sign to be hung above the door reading:

"JEALOUSIES SHALL NOT ENTER HERE."

Will Present Sacred Concert in Local Church Sunday

Church Sunday

The patronage which residents of this vicinity gave the Welsh Imperial Singers' program in the First Methodist church last night, indicates Muscatine's fondness for entertainments of this class. About 900 paid admissions were received. A check up of expenses has not yet been made and no report of the amount to be donated to charity was available today.

Under the dominant and masterful direction of R. Festyn Davies the 12 singers presented a worth while program. The 12 voices are admirably balanced. Their sharp attacks and accuracy in rhythm are remarkable. The tone shading and nuances in phrasing and color keep up the interest of listeners from start to finish.

When the above hand was playin a Duplicate Contract Tournal. East and West did no bidding. At a tables South bid three Spades, North five Spades, and South, Six Spades. At other tables South made the artificial bid of two Clubs, North bid two Diamonds (showing that he did not hold an Ace and King or two Aces), South two Spades, North five Spades, and South six Spades. At a few tables North then bid seven Spades. At the tables at which the seven Spades was bid, the play was as follows: West led the Seven of Diamonds. Declarer, desiring to take the Spade finesse immediately, put up North's Diamond Ace and then led the Deuce of Spades, keeping dummy's Queen to use as an entry later. When East played small, South won by finessing the Jack. As that left only the King outstanding, it was easy to pick it up with the Ace. Then South played the Ace and King of Clubs, and North was put in with the Queen of Spades to cash two Clubs on which South discarded two losing Hearts. Following that, Declarer had a show-down for a grand slam. South's artificial two-Club bid, followed by North's artificial two Diamonds, disclosed the fact that North did not hold both the Spade King and the Diamond Ace; and of course the Declarer had good luck in finding the adverse King of Spades where he wanted it—in the East hand—instead of where he did not want it—in the West hand. Bridge-Auction and Contract

By the Authority MILTON C. WORK

When the above hand was played in a Duplicate Contract Tournament East and West did no bidding. At some tables South bid three Spades, North five Spades, and South, Six Spades. At other tables South made the artificial bid of two Clubs, North bid two Diamonds (showing that he did not hold an Ace and King or two Aces), South two Spades, North five Spades, and South six Spades. At a few tables North then bid seven Spades. At the tables at which the seven Spades was bid, the play was as follows: West led the Seven of Diamonds. Declarer, desiring to take the Spade finesse immediately, put up North's Diamond Ace and then led the Deuce of Spades, keeping dummy's Queen to use as an entry later. When East played small, South won by finessing the Jack. As that left only the King outstanding, it was easy to pick it up with the Ace. Then South played the Ace and King of Clubs, and North was put in with the Queen of Spades to cash two Clubs on which South discarded two losing Hearts. Following that, Declarer had a show-down for a grand slam. South's artificial two-Club bid, followed by North's artificial two-Diamonds, disclosed the fact that North did not hold both the Spade King and the Diamond Ace; and of course the Declarer had good luck in finding the adverse King of Spades where he wanted it—in the East hand—instead of where he did not want it—in the West hand.

generally the odds favor the finesse but when it cannot be taken a sec-ond time there is not much choice. (Copyright, 1931)

Watch The Legislature

The rather unenviable task of redistricting the state so as to elminate two congressional districts confronts the Iowa legislature which convenes next week. The problem is certain to lead to protracted discussion and may engender hard feelings that should have no place in legislative deliberations. In one important particular it is unfortunate that representation in Congress from the less populous sections of the county is growing less as the thickly populated sections gain. This is that machine politics works the smoothest where the voters are compact. Corruption is more easily accomplished. Most of our liberal representatives have come from the less thickly settled parts of the country. They are more closely connected with the people and are more ready to respond to popular demand, knowing that if they don't their political life will be short. The trend toward the states with the large cities results in another handicap for democratic government.

But redistricting is only one of the problems slated to be considered. Sen. F. C. Stanley of Oskaloosa has outlined possible legislation as follows:

The income tax in connection with a general tax revision program.

Some demand for a state police force. Economy, which should mean reduction in appropriations, including the reduction of building programs.

There was strong opposition to the expense bill of the last legislature and it may be repealed. There is much sentiment for making military training at state schools optional instead of compulsory.

Many feel that there should be legislation designed to take care of handicapped children.

There is a demand for a law to compel owners of automobiles to show liability insurance or other financial re-

Many favor a law compelling vehicles other than automobiles to carry lights.

Demand for some control of the truck and large passenger bus so as to preserve the highways.

There will probably be partial revision of the secondary

These are only a few of the many measures that are practically certain to come before the legislature for action. They are mentioned here without comment so as to present to our readers some of the main issues with which the lawmakers are confronted. Most of us have decided opinions one way or another concerning all of them. It is the intention of the Free Press to present its views on pending legislation from time to time and we also invite communications from our subscribers as it is only by a frank discussion that we will become more enlightened on matters that are of vital concern to all of us.

Higher Postage Opposed

With every member of the house post office committee opposed and in accord with the general opposition throughout the country, there is little possibility that the first class postal rates will be raised from two to two and one-half cents as requested by the Postmaster General. The situation was summed up in a recent address in the House by Representative Kelly, who said:

"There is no method of measuring in dollars and cents the value of this great agency of communication. Its value in the past, the present and the future is the cementing force which binds a country into a community and a nation into a neighborhood. The post office is not a business; it is a public service. The postal service is a part of our American educational system far more than it is a part of our business system. In my humble judgment increased volume and increased morale will do more to accomplish the end desired by the officials of the department than the recommendations they have made to Congress."

First class postage matter is the only branch of the postal department that pays and it seems to be the idea of the postmaster general that because it is the one department that it is self-sustaining it should be made to carry more of the deficit of the other branches. This is riding a good horse to death. No other class of postage effects the pocketbook of the American people to a greater extent. It is the one classification that directly concerns the masses. While a half-cent raise may not seem much to the individual letter writer it would amount to millions of dollars a year taken from the general public to help finance those who are better able to pay for the special services they use.

Representative Kelly is only expressing the popular will when he says that not one of his committee is in favor of the

Lingle Murderer Caught

Without detracting from the success of the officials whose investigations finally resulted in the capture of Leo Brothers, St. Louis gunman, held on a charge of murdering "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, last summer, it is only an instance, and rather isolated at that, of running down members of organized crime. For every one that pays the penalty there are at least a dozen who escape and many more who evade punishment through legal technicalities.

It must be remembered that no expense was spared in running down the man accused of slaying Lingle. Thousands of dollars of private funds were immediately available to finance the search. But even with this outlay it has taken more than six months to find the gangster.

That he is caught is cause for congratulation, but at the same time the capture only serves to emphasize the number who escape because those personally interested in their apprehension have not the money with which to finance a protracted search.

More Truth Than Poetry By James J. Montague

THE LAST STRAW (It is now planned to feed Russian con in common dining rooms)

Though I don't know what plans they may have in their heads.
I somehow have thought all along
That the Soviet schemes for uplifting the Reds
Were destined at last to go wrong.
It was bad to confine all the reading they did
To the Bolshevist papers and books,
And still more indiscreet to compel them to eat
The output of restaurant cooks.

When sometimes ill-fortune compelled me to roam I was commonly lonely and sad,
And the thing I missed most was the cooking back home.
Which was otherwise not to be had.
Whenewer with bitter reluctance compelled
A restaurant meal to devour
For the rest of the day, as I went on my way,
I was sullen and surly and sour.

If Stalin prohibits the old kitchen range,
If all his unfortunate race
Must take all their meals in an eating exchange
An outbreak is sure to take place.
He may pick out their lobs, and assign them their wives,
And they only will mutter and brood
And tolerate to a man his pentadal plan,
But he can't interfere with their food.

No people on earth could endure the affront,
(Not even in Russia's worst days)
Of having a government soup-kitchen stunt
Replace their old prandial ways.
Though the Moujik is gentle and docile and meek
And but little emotion he feels
His protests and cries will arise to the skies
If the Boss interferes with his meals.

BURLINGTON, Ia., Jan. 10.— (Special)—Given the hardest bat-tle it had this year, the Little Musky basketball machine came near to taking its first defeat Friday night at Burlington against the Burlington "Greyhounds." The final score was Muscatine 14, Bur-lington 13.

Burlington flashy forward, necting for a charity toss and a field goal shortly after. Buddy Pabristus came through with a nice long shot and Barko broke into the scoring column with one. Burlington came right back and scored two more long ones before the quarter ended putting Burlington in the lead by 7 to 4 at the first quarter. These last two field goals were by Sheridan. necting for a charity toss and a field goal shortly after. Buddy

In the third quarter Bud Fabrizius came through with another basket and this was followed by the tying points by "Long John" Barko and then "Skip" Weber came through with a field goal putting the Little Muskies ahead for the first time since early in the game. Hahn made it safer by adding a charity toss and anding the scoring for the third quarter with the score 14 to 11 and the Little Muskies out in front

The fourth quarter found the Muskies trying desperately to add to this total and Burlington trying just as hard to secure the tying points before the gun. With only a few minutes to go the Little points before the gun. With only a few minutes to go the Little Muskies began to stall. Neither team had to this point in the last quarter scored a point. The seconds and finally a minute and then some more seconds and then another minute passed and with each second Coach Bob Kinnan would look just a little more nervous.

The coach could not sit still the entire game and was continually up and down on his chair or somebody else's. With only about a half minute left to play, Sheridan broke loose with another one of his long heaves to put his team within one point of the lead. The time was so short, however, that there was time only for the ball to go up center and the gun ended the thrilling game. The victory gave the Little Muskies their sixth successive win of the season and their fourth Little Six victory without a defeat. Lineups and summaries: The coach could not sit still the had been robbed of a well-garried victory.

Harvey said in his dressing room after the fight that he couldn't understand how Dundee managed to survive those two knockdowns in the first stanza, when he put them down across the pond, they invariably stayed out.

Harvey will do much better when he becomes accustomed to the Am-

Muskies again in the second quarter. Hanh limited the scoring for the half for Muscatine with a free throw and a nice field goal and tying the count. But again Sheridan came through with two field goals and giving his team the lead at halftime, 11 to 7.

MUSKIES GET GOING

At the start of the second half things looked much brighter from the Musky standpoint when counted seven points before their opponents could connect for their only field goal, that coming in the last quarter. In the third quarter Bud Fabrizius came through with another basket and this was followed by the tying points by "Long love" Bake and the will show a safely and also was bothered by repeated warnings by the referee. The Briton had a trick of back-handing his opponent with his left, and also was cautioned by the referee for giving Vince the elbow in close for giving Vince the elbow in close for giving vince the shorter of the two, was a regular leaping lens. He kept jumping off the floor and chopping rights to the English man's nose and mouth, drawing a stream of scarlet. Although the Green coached boys were fighting every second of the engagement, they were unable to stop the scoring activities of the visitors. Albia clearly showed its superiority and gave the fans a treat with its fine passing and uncanny eye for the hoop. Sexten. Crawford, and Cameron looked best for Albia but the whole team functioned like clockwork to mark another conference win.

LOCALS STAGE RALLY

In covering Barko like a blanket and allowing him but two field goals, the Greybounds were dangerous from the first. The Little Muskies presented an impregnable defense but their opponents were hitting on long shots and made the score much closer than had been anticipated. There were two Burlington men constantly on Barko's neck. Sheridan, center of the Burlington outfit, was hot on some long ones and his shots continually made it look dark for Muscatine. He connected for five goals from the field. Each team connected for six field goals but Muscatine added two free throws to this total against one for Burlington.

MISS MANY SET-UPS

The game was very fast from start to finish with both teams missing many set shots at the hoop. Although somewhat curtailed in the line of scoring points, Barko played a fine floor game. Buddy Fabrizius again showed that he still had his eye of last year and pulled through in the critical moments with two nice field goals. Capt. Bernard Hahn connected for the Little Muskles as Coach Bob Kinnan used but five men the entire engagement. Weber played a defensive floor game that would stand out in any basketball game. Scorer and Roby Star Guard

Led by Montgomery, who sunk five goals from the field and a charity toss, and Roby, who covered Gaulocher of Iowa City like a blanket, the St. Mary's high school team of Muscatine defeated the St. Mary's aggregation of Iowa City in a fast battle on the local floor last night, 23 to 13.

Montgomery was shooting his goals from all angles and easily took scoring honors for the contest. Gaulocher, who scored 9 goals earlier in the season at Iowa City, was stopped almost dead in his tracks by the great defensive playing of Roby, who also found time to add a two pointer to his team's total.

Referee Burns was calling them close last night and as a result seven of Iowa City's points came via the free throw route.

The game was featured by the guarding and pretty floor work of both teams and was a treat for the capacity crowd to watch.

The St. Mathias Alumni nosed out the St. Mary's Alumni in a preliminary attraction, 22 to 17. The feature game score:

Herr schmeling received it with STRIBLING FEARS REFEREE ONLY

By HYPE IGOE

(INS Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS) —
The thorn in Billy Stribiling's side isn't Jack Sharkey. It isn't Jim Farley or Bill Muldoon or Jack Phelan. It isn't anybody but that gentile soul, Lou Magnolia, crack referee of the New York boxing commission staff. Lou Magnolia is why the Georgia Peach isn't coming back to New York to fight Jack Sharkey for the "contending."
The guy that Billy and Paw won't have atall. Lou Magnolia, if you'll believe Paw, is the fellow who will always keep Stribling out of New York. Paw said so today. "The report that I said I wouldn't get a square deal for myself and my boy in New York is a bit exagerated," said Paw. He came here to see what was doing for son Bill—not in New York—but wherever Herr Max Schmeling decided to throw down the gauntlet.

"What I meant by a square deal was this," went on Pa. "I did say that I thought I could get fairer treatment in Chicago, and this is why I said that.

"I know that if I came into New York to fight Sharkey, Lou Magnolia doesn't like my boy. II came in here to 'fight Sharkey, Magnolia would referee the bout. I know Magnolia doesn't like my boy. II came in here to 'fight Sharkey, Magnolia would referee.

"But Magnolia or no Magnolia, we are not going to fight Jack Sharkey! We are going to fight Max Schmeling for the world's title. I haven't signed yet for Billy as I am waiting on Damon Runyon of the milk fund committee. I will string along with that faction. After all, Max Schmeling is the world's the my to york is the third world's to the world's champlon. Sharkey isn't.

After all, Max Schmeling is the world's champion. Sharkey isn't. He may in New York, but New York is just New York."

"Naturally, I was a bit upset. The idea of preaching always had appealed to me, but I hadn't reck-oned on having the president of the United States in my first congregation.

"There was a lot of scurrying around to clean up the church. The little stove in the center of the church was taken up; the long pipe running along the ceiling was stripped away and the kitchen chairs which served as pews were scrubbed.

"I had some difficulty getting started but I was soon placed at ease by Mrs. Coolidge. She smiled very graciously and made me feel right at home. They came thereafter, for several Sundays and each time it was her friendly smile that helped me along."

BRITISH WOMEN BEST LOOKING WRITER CLAIMS

Many Racial Strains Have Produced an Added Beauty

PARIS-England produces the most beautiful women in the world, according to Charles B.

Cochran, writing in the Continen-tal Edition of "The Laily Mail."
"In all ranks of society, our English women, be they prin-cesses, peeresses, players, typists, nists, seamstresses or slaveys, more than hold their own with their 'opposite numbers' in France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Scandinavia or where you will," says Mr. Cochran. "For outstanding examples of individual loveliness and for high average of profity women, we Fredish ever pretty women, we English excel any other race with which I am

The English woman does not rely so much on the artful aid of clothes, believes the writer, because she does not have to. She disdains for the most part, the large number of subtle artifices of attract tion practiced by other women the world over.

Miss England is the combination of the blue of the sea, of the Viking rover's eye, the gold of the Rhine and the darkness of prehistoric migrants. Many different historic migrants. Many different racial qualities and strains have gone to the making of the girls to be found in the English shop, the office, drawing room and on the English seaside. The free and decent comradeship of men and the give-and-take of sport and business associations have emancipated her, strengthened her and so giving added beauty.

"Unquestionably, for all the languors and lilles of Mediterranean sirens," concludes the writer, "for all the metallic finish of the sovereign American woman, for all the elaborated technical chic of the Frenchwoman, the English woman excells today and always in the list of loveliness by reason of the state University of Jowa, A.
